ALLIES SET UP AIR BASE IN FRANCE

Yanks Bag 3000 Men; Nazis Flood Battle Area

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 10 (AP)—Allied headquarters announced today that Gen. Sir Barnard L. Montgomery, commander of Allied ground invasion forces, had established his advanced headquarters in France. Gen. Montgomery already has visited his troops in front-line action and was reported well satisfied with their progress.

By WES GALLAGHER

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 10 (AP)---American troops—supported by Allied planes operating from French soil for the first time since 1940---fought through German-flooded battlegrounds today toward strategic Cherbourg, cutting the railway below the port in several places, and seizing two important towns.

The powerful U. S. attack, hampered by flood waters from inches to seven feet deep, hammered north toward Cherbourg west in a push to snip off the peninsula tip, and developed a two-way squeeze on Carentan guarding the narrowest neck of the jutting cape.

Berlin broadcasts put the Americans within 15 miles of Cherbourg, and said German forces, in the face of fresh parachute landings, were withdrawing south of Montebourg to shorten their lines.

U. S. Thunderbolts and RAF Spitfires landed and took off from airfields established in France just four days after the invasion, roaring out in closest support of the ground assault.

Americans battling between Bayeux and Carentan seized Isigny—control point for floodgates there of the German-wrought inundation—and Trevieres, nine miles west of Bayeux.

The Nazis flooded large areas around Carentan, Ste. Mere Eglise and northeast of Caen, and headquarters reported heavy fighting in the Carentan area.

Americans have taken more than 3000 prisoners.

Headquarters identified four Nazi divisions engaged in heavy fighting against British and Canadian forces fighting for Caen, pivot city at the eastern end of the 60-mile long beachhead front.

Springing forward from Ste. Mere Eglise, Americans drove north toward Cherbourg, and sent another column ramming south upon Carentan.

Other American forces drove on Carentan from the east after seizing Isigny, seven miles away, putting a pincers push on that stronghold town.

The rapid establishment of air bases on liberated French territory not only gave close fighter cover, but permitted air evacuation of wounded men.

"Planes of the Ninth Air Force troop carrier commands are evacuating wounded from landing grounds in the beachhead areas from strips constructed by special airfield engineers' units," headquarters announced.

"The first wounded were landed at an airfield in Britain at 1:10 p. m. (7:10 a. m., E. W. T.) today."

Just a few hours earlier it was disclosed the Ninth Air Force had established an advanced headquarters in France, preliminary to putting bases in operation. Such bases give fighters a considerable advantage over their former "channel commuting."

The flooding on the beachhead varies in depth up to seven feet, but headquarters said the ground was very soggy, making advance of the Americans difficult, particularly in the Carentan area.

As for the offensive against Cherbourg, Berlin radio said "in the face of fresh paratroop landings south of Valognes (11 miles below Cherbourg) the German high command has withdrawn its spearheads to a shortened defense

De Gaulle Digs At Eisenhower

LONDON, June 10 (AP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle said today Gen. Eisenhower's proclamations to the French people on D-Day and later occasions seem to foreshadow a sort of taking-over of power in France by the Allied military command.

"This situation is obviously not acceptable for us and it could provoke in France itself incidents which it seems to us must be avoided," he told interviewers.

"The issue in France of so-called French currency without any agreement and without any guarantee from the French authority can only lead to serious complications. At the moment when the battle is being joined on the soil of France, the French government is eager in common interest to see an end to such confusion and infringement."

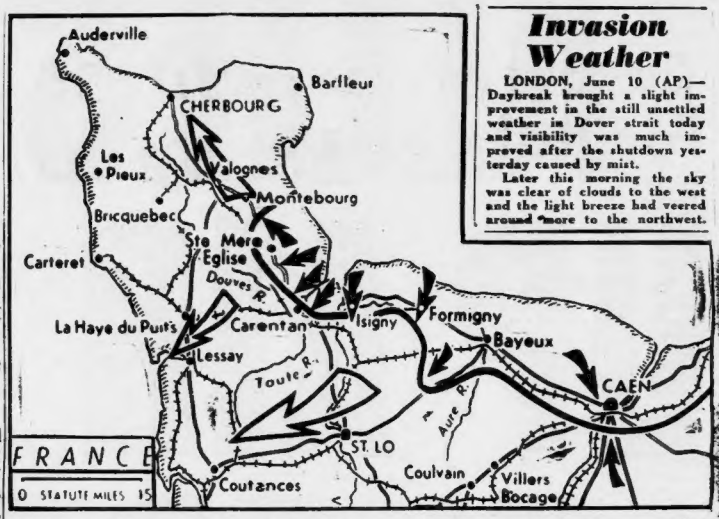
WASHINGTON, Mass., June 10 (AP)—Two black bears startled Boston and & Albany Railroad Engineer Philip Harter of Albany, N. Y., today when they ambled across the tracks in front of his speeding locomotive.

Finland Accused

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—The State Department accused the Finnish government of "pro-Germa nsympathies" today as a result of Finland's suppression of a newspaper because of its pro-Allied stand.



FRANCE—Solid arrows indicate points on French invasion coast where Allied units are reported attacking today . . . and where German counter attack was beaten off near Caen. Open arrows indicate aim of Allies to isolate Germans on Cherbourg peninsula and capture the port city.

Invasion Weather

LONDON, June 10 (AP)—Daybreak brought a slight improvement in the still unsettled weather in Dover strait today and visibility was much improved after the shutdown yesterday caused by mist.

Later this morning the sky was clear of clouds to the west and the light breeze had veered around more to the northwest.

Invasion Bulletins

HEADQUARTERS, A. E. F., June 10 (AP)—Two destroyers were the United States Navy's only losses up to the fourthday of the invasion, it was said at Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters today.

HEADQUARTERS, A. E. F., June 10 (AP)—The tiny village of Sully, two miles northwest of Bayeux, was the original joining up place between American forces on the right and British and Canadians on the left of the French beachhead, it was disclosed today. Sully was captured by Americans with considerable losses.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 10 (AP)—Light coastal ships of the Royal navy sank four heavily-armed German trawlers today off the Dutch coast at a cost of one motor torpedo boat in another of a series of naval clashes, the admiralty announced.

LONDON (INS)—Allied field headquarters announced that the battle situation in western France is improving hourly, a combined press correspondent reported. The Allies now hold at least a 40-mile span of beach, the dispatch said.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force (INS)—All of the Canadian troops in Normandy are engaged in the eastern sector of the beachhead, where the British airborne division also is operating, Allied officials disclosed today.

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP)—French patriot formations have surrounded Grenoble in southern France and the city is "now in a state of siege," the Swiss newspaper La Suisse said in an article reported today by OWI.

LONDON, June 10 (INS)—A German military spokesman predicted today that the "second phase" of the Allied invasion of western France will open "in the next few hours or days." "German operational reserves have only just come into action," he added.

By The Associated Press

American troops have captured Isigny.

Despite unfavorable weather conditions the disembarkation is uninterrupted.

Withstanding heavy enemy attacks delivered yesterday morning by infantry and armor, British and Canadian troops stood firm in the Caen area.

Our forces have made contact with strong enemy forces near Conde Sur Seulles.

There is continuous fighting in other sectors.

Adverse weather during daylight yesterday confined our air activity to limited patrols over the immediate battle area of coastal aircraft operations.

An enemy destroyer driven ashore off Batz in the Brest peninsula earlier in day by naval surface forces was attacked and left a smouldering hulk.

One enemy aircraft was shot down 20 miles off Brest by anti E-boat patrols flying over western channel waters.

Last night a strong force of heavy bombers, eight of which are missing, attacked enemy airfields at Flers, Rennes, Laval and Le Mans in northwestern France, and the railway center at Etampes.

Light bombers impounded enemy communications in the rear of the battle zone.

Night fighters and intruder aircraft shot down four enemy planes over the beachhead.

Coastal aircraft are co-operating with naval surface forces in a vigorous offensive against U-boats which are threatening to attack our lines of communication to the assault area.

'Catastrophe' For Italy Nazis

ROME, June 10 (AP)—The German 14th Army fled northward today with increasing disorder, and the Allied command for the first time declared officially a "catastrophe" has befallen Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's forces in Italy.

Slashing steadily northward after the retreating foe, the Fifth Army captured the ancient town of Tuscania, 13 miles northeast of Tarquinia.

Despite the great speed of Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's pursuing troops, which have averaged roughly 15 miles daily since the fall of Rome, an official spokesman declared they are "unable to catch up with any important elements of Col.-Gen. Eberhard von Mackensen's 14th Army which is withdrawing in this area in a completely disorganized fashion."

The Eighth Army also picked up speed in its northward advance near the Adriatic.

Mackensen's flight was considered a peril to the Nazi 10th Army, whose withdrawal northward on the east side of the Tiber has been slower and more orderly due largely to demolitions, mine fields and the mountainous terrain which made close pursuit by the British Eighth Army difficult.

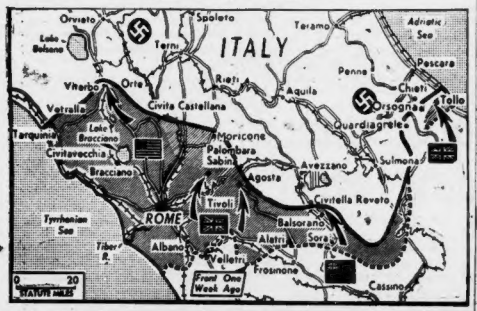
"East of the Tiber river the German 10thArmy is robbed of the support of its sister army and now has to provide, out of its own means, flank protection against the threat represented by the Allied advance to the Viterbo area," the spokesman said.

"Here, too, there is considerable disorganization noted and prisoners recently taken include cooks, butchers, bakers, some no more than 14 years old.

"Losses in the 10th Army continue heavy and the Hermann Goering division, in particular, has been reduced to a strength comparable with that with which it straggled back from Sicily."

With the taking of Tuscania, Tarquinia and Vetralla, the Fifth Army now has fanned out on a broad front more than 50 miles northwest from Rome, and at the same time has stabbed 40 miles north of the capital city in a drive beyond Veterbo, a provincial capital and communications center which was a medieval rival to Rome.

The Eighth Army captured Moricone, 11 miles north of Tivoli, and Arsoli, nine miles northwest of Subiaco.



Hero Brothers

ON A BEACHHEAD IN FRANCE, June 9 (delayed) (AP)—Two brothers landed today to begin their third invasion together.

They are Sergts. Joseph and Fred Peltier, 30 and 32 respectively, of Norwichtown, Ct., machine gunners in an infantry outfit which gained high honors in Africa and Sicily.

Joseph, wounded by a strafing Nazi plane in Sicily, rejoined Fred in Britain.

Clinton Officer Cites Paratroop Heroism

Heroism of an American paratroop unit, which suffered heavy casualties but "beat the hell out of the best they could throw at us" was disclosed today by Lieut. L. A. Barling of Clinton as he made contact with invasion forces in search of food, ammunition and medical supplies for his men.

Despatches from the front told how Lieut. Barling and a fellow officer finally reached the main invasion forces after three days of ranging through the flooded French marshlands.

His unit has rounded up and is holding under guard more than 1000 elite German parachutists, who were dropped almost on top of them as they made their initial landing deep in French territory.

"We lost a good many men coming down as they were machine-gunning us all the way," Barling reported to superior officers. "When I went out on my jump I thought I was walking on flak.

"All we had to take care of the wounded were the enlisted medical personnel.

"But we organized, attacked and accomplished our mission. We beat the hell out of the best they could throw at us and we're going on and get more of them."

Hitler's West Wall Wooden-Gun Myth

By CLARK LEE

WITH UNITED STATES FORCES IN FRANCE, June 8 (delayed) (INS)—This is part of the story—from American intelligence officers and from first-hand observation—of what was wrong with Hitler's Atlantic Wall and why Allied forces bent upon liberation of France and all Europe crashed through it.

Without any intention or desire to detract from the limitless heroism of American, British and Canadian troops who went through indescribable hell at the savagely defended beaches, the indisputable fact remains that at many places on the Norman coast of France the fortifications demanded by Adolf Hitler were not built.

The mine-fields were not laid.

aBtteries of coastal guns were in reality huge tree trunks felled and tilted at an imposing angle.

Today, huge blue-jerseyed Frenchmen in sabots are carting these "guns" away to use as fuel.

Never have Frenchmen enjoyed anything so much as taking these "cannon" apart and hacking them up, to cook food in their farmhouse fireplaces.

Before each wooden "Big Bertha" was disassembled, the French insisted on going through an endless pantomime of "loading and firing" them.

When Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel visited this section of the German coastal defenses on the southeastern corner of the Cherbourg peninsula three months ago, he gazed with unconcealed satisfaction at hundreds of death's-signs reading, "Achtung Minen" (Warning! Mines!).

He congratulated his local commander on the manner in which he had sewn death-dealing land mines solidly along the strip behind the beaches, beside every road and ditch, along the narrow causeways leading across an artificially inundated area and beneath the pasture-land where poppies and yellow buttercups were blooming.

Rommel remarked:

"The enemy won't get through here."

He gave the Nazi salute and departed. His local commander wiped a sweating forehead and turned to his subordinates with a sigh of relief.

They shared with him the knowledge that along the whole coast only a handful of mines were planted, and in most areas where warning signs were thick there was not a mine.

Unable to obtain these infernal machines from bomb-battered Germany, and fearing Rommel's wrath if he discovered that fact, the commander had simply posted signs in places where mines should have been.

Italy 'Stinking Death And Roses' to Yank

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—". . . Stinking death and beautiful roses. That is my conception of Italy."

Thus did Sergt. Richard Embley, former House press gallery attendant, write to William J. Donaldson, gallery superintendent, and to Embley's other onetime co-workers among Capitol news men.

He said his letter, which was passed by censors and which speaks graphically for itself, was "sort of in answer to any questions that have been or may be asked concerning the struggle in sunny Italy."

His letter continues:

"I think I've told you of the wholesale devastation—whole towns with not a single undamaged home—rubble and wrecked equipment all over the countryside.

DEVASTATION EVERYWHERE

"I saw a German soldier in one wrecked building that had been kissed by a flame-thrower—his face was just a melted chunk of burned flesh—his ribs were poked up to the roof—and the clothing, what little was left, was just burned shreds.

"You see twisted hulks of tanks—guns bent and great holes blasted in the sides—and the flies hovering over the turret.

"And you see boots and shoes along the highways—in which the foot or leg of some poor unfortunate devil is still encased—and the smell of decaying bodies sometimes is over-powering.

"Shell fragments make the most ghastly mess of a man . . .

BUT ROSES BLOOM

"You see great craters blasted in the earth by the huge aerial bombs; holes that go so deep they strike water—holes so big you could put a fair size house in them . . . You can—or maybe you can't—imagine what they do when they hit a house—what the blast from the bomb itself doesn't destroy the concussion finishes. I don't think there can be many window panes left in the whole of Italy.

"And yet everywhere roses are growing on the hill sides and the blood poppies wave in the warm air—scented by dead horses and men and roses. That to me is my conception of Italy—stinking death and beautiful roses."

Nantasket Swim Ban on Tuesday

The Army today banned the public from bathing or entering the water in the vicinity of Nantasket, Allerton or Hull in the morning or late evening next Tuesday, because of severe underwater explosions which will occur in those areas that day.

In the event of unfavorable weather conditions or other contingencies, Brig.-Gen. P. S. Gage, commanding the Boston harbor defenses, said that the activity would be postponed from day to day until completed.

Army patrols will be stationed at the beaches during the periods of this activity.

Conferees O. K. GI Bill; Gibson Flies to Win Test

By FRANK REILLY
Record-American Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 10—The GI Bill of Rights waswrenched free of a conference committee deadlock today and will be reported to House ad Senate early next week adn possibly made law by Thursday.

The spur to action was Rep. John S. Gibson of Douglas, Ga., who crawled out of his sick bed at home last night for a wild automobile ride and plane flight that brought him here in nick of time.

Gibson went through the ordeal after American Legion officials here telephoned him an appeal.

House conferees were stalemated, three to three, on unemployment terms of the bill. Gibson's vote was needed to break the tie and save the bill from slumbering through a summer adjournment.

The bedridden Georgian had sent his proxy vote in favor of the unemployment provision, but Rep. Rankin of Mississippi, chairman of the House conferees and storm center in the bill's progress, had refused to accept it.

Today, wan and pale after his dramatic race to save the day, the courageous little Georgia lawyer walked into the conference room and confronted Rankin.

"HELLO, JOHN"

"Hello, John," he said in a folksy manner.

Rankin looked up. "Hello," he answered. Then he added, referring to the Georgia political situation, "Did you beat them back home?"

"Yes, John," said Gibson, "and now I have come up here to lick you."

Rankin sighed and made a gesture of resignation. Later he switched his vote and the decision to report the bill out was unanimous.

It is expected to go to the Senate Monday or Tuesday. It is due in the House Tuesday or Thursday. A number of representatives will be absent Wednesda, thus the arrangement will be made in deference to them.

As offered for enactment, the GI Bill will make broader provisions in connection with unemployment compensation than those agreed upon formerly by the conferees.

It now stipulates that veterans will be eligible for a maximum of 52 weeks compensation—at any time in their lives when they find themselves jobless. They will receive eight weeks' compensation for every month of service, up to the maximum 52 weeks.

Previously the bill had been so phrased as to provide a $20-a-week check—only if the jobless period were within two years after discharge.

RANKIN BLAMED

"I think we've got a good bill," said Senator Clark of Missouri, chairman of the Senate conferees.

Hearty agreement was expressed by former Gov. John Stelle of Illinois, chairman of the American Legion committee which drafted the measure and fought for its adoption.

He praised the conferees for cooperation, singling out Rep. Gibson as, "always 100 per cent right."

Stelle declared:

"The deadlock was caused by Congressman Rankin but we're on our way now This bill will send confidence to the boys overseas. They will know there awaits them a land of friendship and opportunity.

"They will have absolute assurance of unemployment compensation when and if they need it.

"The bill will see to it that the boys whose education was interrupted will be able to take refresher courses.

"The older men, married men, will be given the chance to own a home or a farm. They can borrow up to $2500 at no interest for two years, then pay only 3 per cent. It will put them in their rightful places in the community."

In his praise for Legion leaders who drew up the bill and pressed it, Stelle pointed out they had not acted with selfish interest.

"The GI bill," he asserted, "provides for these boys of World War II all of the things that were denied us of World War I, 25 years ago. That was our sole motive. Only a small number of our members will qualify as beneficiaries under this legislation."

Stelle also praised Legion officials of Georgia and Florida for their successful efforts to expedite Congressman Gibson's sickbed race for the capital.

No one was happier about today's developments than the plucky little Georgian, for all the fact that he had literally taken his life in hsi hands to serve American fighting men.

Shortly before midnight, he had thrown off the covers of his bed, hastened into his clothes and answered what he considered a call to duty above all considerations to his failing health.

Earlier, American Legion officials here had telephoned him an impasse had developed among House conference committee members over an educational provision in the GI bill.

It concerned only one provision but prompt passage of the entire measure was jeopardized.

DEADLOCK

Senatorial conferees had approved the paragraph. Three House conferees had approved it. Their three colleagues were against it.

It was a gloomy picture for American fighting men in France, in Australia, the Pacific islands, Burma, and all the distant outposts where they and American women are fighting for the future of democracy.

Over the telephone from Washington, the question was put to Gibson: Could he come without imperiling his life?

He would come. The 51-year-old Georgia lawyer declared:

"I will not let them rob my kids of their opportunities." A son, Lieut. Marvin Gibson, is with the Army. A daughter, Blanche, is wearing a Marine uniform.

The American Legion swung into action from the capital. An Eastern Airlines plane was due to leave Jacksonville, Fla., at 2:20 a. m. Arrangements were made to have it wait until Gibson could make it. As a member of Congress with government business at hand, he was entitled to the cooperation.

Clarke Luke, American Legion department commander in Georgia, raced for his garage in a town 40 miles from the Congressman's home. Seconds later he was burning up the country roads, headed for Douglas.

Gibson was ready. Assuring his anxious family he could stand up under the strain of such travel, he jumped into Luke's car and they raced off.

Twenty-five miles from Douglas is the town of Ocillo. Another Legion man boarded the car there and relieved Luke at the wheel.

There was no need for the plane pilot at Jacksonville to look anxiously at his wrist watch. The car carrying the congressman sped onto the field in ample time for the regularly scheduled 2:20 a. m. takeoff.

MET AT STATION

The weakened Georgia legislator slumped down in his seat, waved a wry farewell to his Legion and police escorts, then tried to get a little sleep.

He was too keyed up to nap. At 6:37 a. m. he stumbled out of the plane at the Washington airport and was embraced by an appreciative Legion delegation.

Heading the welcomers was former Gov. John Stelle of Illinois, chairman of the Legion committee that drafted the GI bill.

With him were Roane Waring of Memphis, Tenn., and Harry W. Colmery of Topeka, Kan., both past national commanders; U. S. Atty. Sam Rorex of Arkansas and two of the Legion GI committee members, Jabez Kelly of Atlanta and Lyon Brandon of Mississippi.

They took the spunky Georgian to a hotel, where he had a little breakfast and tried to rest.

Within several hours he was due to attend a meeting of the deadlocked conference group and cast the necessary vote to register a majority for the bill.

He had made a trip unmatched in history in connection with national legislation. He was weak, tired and a subject for medical care. But he had come out of the plane repeating what he had said as he left home—"I will not let them rob my kids of their opportunities."

Tribute Paid W. R. Hearst For Aid in GI Fight

WASHINGTON, June 10—Tribute to William Randolph Hearst for his aid in the long battle to enact the GI "Bill of Rights" was paid today by John Stelle, former governor of Illinois and chairman of the American Legion committee which drafted and fought for passage of the measure.

"I want to thank Mr. William Randolph Hearst, as did our national executive committee recently, for the wonderful support of the American Legion GI 'Bill of Rights' given through his great newspaper organization," Stelle said.

"Mr. Hearst's work in behalf of those who today are breaking the enemy lines in all parts of the world is deserving of the commendation of every American.

"In William Randolph Hearst the veterans of this and previous conflicts have a true friend."

Third of U. S. Will Be 60 or Over by 1980

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK, June 10—By 1980 one-third of the population of the United States will be aged 60 or more, according to statistics quoted by Dr. Edward B. Allen of White Plains, N. Y., to the American Geriatrics Society today.

The Geriatrics Society, which is a new medical and scientific organization to study the problems of the ageing, was also told by Dr. Allen of the cases of two aged men who used their mental hallucinations both to prolong their lives and their usefulness to society.

Both were men of accomplishments, one a successful inventor, the other had organized a university law school. The inventor was 79, the other 75.

The inventor had a worry neurosis. He challenged doctors to cure him, was gleeful when they failed.

"This patient's neurosis," said Dr. Allen, "undoubtedly contributed to his longevity. It enabled him to give sufficient attention to his health and not overdo in spite of his business success. His neurosis was his most valuable possession and gave him sufficient compensation for any feeling of inferiority."

His worries, at 79, put him in a hospital for mental treatment, where he recovered enough to return to business and when last heard from was attending a meeting of a zoological society.

The 75-year-old had married twice and confused his first and second wives, imagining often the second was the first, a fact which gave him some satisfaction. He also imagined he was of illustrious royal percentage. The two delusions enabled him to build a defense against unpleasant realities of his personal life.

At the same time he remained sane in other respects and after his trip to a mental hospital at 75 he recovered enough to leave and start writing a history. But for the protection of the delusions this man might have had a general mental deterioration.

Salem Councilor Critically Ill

Governor's Councilor William H. McSweeney, 66, of Salem, was reported in critical condition today at Salem Hospital, where he was taken Thursday night after suffering a relapse while recovering from an attack of pneumonia.

Doctors said hope had been abandoned for his recovery.

He was treated recently at the hospital for pneumonia and complications and was discharged two weeks ago.

For many years a prominent trial lawyer in Essex County, McSweeney was elected to the State Senate in a special 1935 election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Albert Pierce.

He was re-elected for three terms and then was successful in election to the council in 1942.

Italian Cabinet Spurns Oath

ROME, June 10 (AP—The Italian cabinet of Premier Ivanoe Bonomi assumed office today without taking the customary oath to the crown, as represented by Crown Prince Umberto.

Instead the 17 ministers pledged themselves to the premier to fulfill their duties according to the constitution.

Invasion Prayer Starts Tomorrow

Six days of prayer to the Sacred Heart for men and women in the armed services will be opened tomorrow in the Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Greenwood, at 7:45 p. m.

Religious invasion exercises will be conducted by the Rev. Paul Barry, S. J., guest speaker on the Catholic Truth Hour and former editor of the Jesuit Mission Magazine, who will officiate throughout the period.

Rites, Parade In Flag Tribute

Boston's observance of the 167th anniversary of Flag Day, Wednesday, will be marked with a dual tribute to the Stars and Stripes and prayers offered for the safety of our fighting men in France and success of the invasion.

CAPT. LEONARD PETERS

Suggestion that special prayers be offered in all churches throughout Boston tomorrow and again Wednesday in connection with the city's Flag Day observance was made by Mayor Tobin.

The Hub's observance of the day will be climaxed by a great outdoor spectacle of public prayer on Boston Common Wednesday evening, following a military parade and patriotic exercise.

SOLEMN SIGNIFICANCE

"Flag Day this year holds a solemn significance for every American," said Mayor Tobin, in urging all citizens to join in the prayer and tribute exercises.

"There is no honor, no tribute too great for us to pay to that flag and those gallant bearers. It is my earnest hope that many thousands of our people will participate in the Flag Day observance on Boston Common Wednesday, when prayers will be offered for the safety of our fighting men, the speedy success of the invasion and the everlasting glory of the American Flag, as the symbol of freedom for mankind.

"I also suggest that special prayers for those blessings be offered tomorrow and again on Flag Day in churches of every faith throughout the city."

PARADE AT 6 P. M.

The parade will form at 6 p. m. at Boylston and Exeter sts., and will get under way at 6:15, and will proceed over Boylston st., through Copley sq., to Tremont st., and up Tremont to a point opposite Temple pl., where the marchers will turn left into the Common and the parade ground on Gen. MacArthur Mall.

Lieut.-Col. John J. Riley, M. S. G., will be marshal, and in the line will be Army, Navy, Marine and Coast Guard units, the State Guard, Women's Defense Corps and war veterans' organizations with massed colors. Special flag detachments will include an historic USA section with Elks escort and band, and a State Flags, Aleppo Temple and United Nations sections.

Mayor Tobin, chairman of the Flag Day Observance Committee, will head a list of distinguished speakers at the exercises which will be held at a platform at the foot of Monument Hill.

A special invitation was issued to families and friends of service men and women to join in prayers for the safety of American boys in France.

Hub Officer Wins Favor of French

Normandy peasants, who submitted sullenly to German occupation, welcomed American doughboys with open arms. In one village they joined the soldiers at mess, according to dispatches today from the invasion front.

Capt. Leonard Peters of Tonawanda st., Dorchester, former Boston employment service man and a veteran of the Tunisian and Sicilian campaigns, made arrangements for feeding of the populace at the regular infantry mess when he was informed many of the civilians could not get food.

Some 1900 civilians were living in the village when the infantry spearheads arrived to clear up German snipers.

Only one civilian was killed, although snipers were using homes to impede the Allied advance. American forces, however, refused to open up with artillery on the houses, probably sparing many civilian lives.

Many of the inhabitants gathered in a large farmhouse at one end of the village and watched the savage street fighting as the doughboys mopped up the Germans. Basements, churches, bedrooms and shops were used by the desperate Germans.

As the fighting ceased the villagers emerged from their hideouts to give the Americans a joyous welcome. Many chatted with the troops as the soldiers paused to quench their thirst at the town pump before trudging up the dusty road toward the receding front.

Quincy Man Seized In Boston Break

A Quincy man was arrested today following a break in a Franklin st., downtown, men's furnishing store and theft of clothing valued at more than $400.

The stolen goods were later recovered by police in an alley off Franklin st., where, police said, the thief had hidden them.

New Bedford War Worker Is Slain

NEW BEDFORD, June 10—Joseph S. Coyle, 58, a war worker, was found stabbed to death in the driveway of his home on Ashley st. today, the victim of a robber, according to police.

Coyle was found by a truck driver, John Bettencourt of New Bedford, who discovered the victim bleeding from the face, neck and chest.

Police said Coyle's pockets were emptied of all contents.

The murdered man was the father of a serviceman, John Coyle, serving in the Aleutian Islands. His grief-stricken widow, Mrs. Martha Coyle, was placed under the care of a physician.

OPA Ceilings Go on Used Autos July 10

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—The Office of Price Administration today slapped price ceilings on all used passenger cars, whether sold by dealers or private owners, at the levels which prevailed in January, 1944.

The order is effective July 10, the month's delay being allowed for the trade to make its adjustments.

OPA set forth specific dollars-and-cents prices for 23 makes and about 6000 models manufactured from 1937 through 1942. Older cars may not be sold for more than the comparable 1937 model.

Kelly Ballot Fight in Court

After a three-hour conference with counsel in his defense of a ballot law commission ruling that removed his name as a candidate for attorney-general, former Lieut.-Gov. Francis E. Kelly announced today he would petition the Supreme Judicial Court Monday to overrule the commission's removal of his name from the ballot.

The petition, drawn up by Kelly with Prof. Frank T. Simpson, dean of Suffolk University Law School, and Atty. Edmund O'Callaghan, will charge illegality on points of law in the protest filed by Atty. Francis B. Harrigan, also a candidate for the nomination.

The ballot law commission consists of Joseph A. Conway, of Hull, chairman; James J. Hurley, of Worcester, and Richard Comerford, of Leominster. Conway and Comerford are Republicans, while Hurley, although a Democrat, recently was reappointed to the commission by Gov. Saltonstall.

The commission by unanimous vote ordered Kelly's name removed from the ballot on the ground his papers did not contain a sufficient number of signatures because of faulty ones. Commission decisions are final except on points of law.

Kelly submitted papers containing 1668 signatures from five counties to meet the requirement of a minimum of 1000 from at least four counties. The commission ruled he had not met this provision after 30 minutes of deliberation on testimony given in the five-day hearing.

Kelly's petition to the high court also will charge the commission exceeded its authority in allowing Harrigan to amend his original protest so that Kelly's first name was spelled correctly, Francis instead of Frances.

Rails, Buses for Invasion Casuals

WASHINGTON, June 10 (INS)—The Office of Defense Transportation urged the public today to refrain from making vacation plans requiring railroad or intercity bus travel.

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, ODT director, warned that railroad and bus passenger space might be cancelled without notice when invasion wounded are taken from incoming hospital ships and troop transports at east and west coast ports to the general hospitals.

Worried Women Flock To Religious Psychics

By ALICE BISSELL

For some, these days, the headline news is not a battle or a world-shaking speech; neither the enemy's staggering loss, nor a victory for the Allies.

The news for them is a simple name in small print on the casualty list. The sweetness of the sight of that name stands out among the others as though it had a light around it. The light of it blots out all the other news. These people understand how all the world events have boiled down to this.

A son or a father or a brother has died today in war.

That is why the most common assignment to a newspaper reporter from the city desk since war, is to visit a home where a War Department telegram has been received.

RICH AND POOR ALIKE

From my very first such assignment on that drear Monday morning, Dec. 8, when a boy was missing at Hickham Field, Hawaii, the cry of these people has been the same one as the cry of that first mother in her silent house.

"If I only knew. I would do anything, just to have an idea. If he is missing there is a chance. If he is reported killed, there still might be a mistake."

I have observed the same reaction in the homes of the rich and the poor, of the ignorant and the educated. Most of the women would go to any extreme for a little hope or a word of certainty.

While many would not be driven to a common fortune-teller, I found during this investigation with Helen Weller, Pauline Warren and Helen Farlow that women worried about men at war are swarming to intensely religious psychics who are perhaps the most harmful of all.

Sufferers are attracted to these people for the true religious faith they possess, for their sincere prayers, and for the Bible readings they give during a seance. It is easy for the distressed mind to rationalize itself into believing the fortune-teller's foolish visions in the crystal ball, when these visions are given out along with honest faith.

These clairvoyants and psychics I found, as I posed as the wife of a mythical aviator missing in action, were usually people who had taken up their profession as a compensation for their own unfortunate lives. Most of them were widowed young, and had turned to "second sight" in exactly the same desperation that drives their customers to them now. They, too, wanted to know something about a loved one who had either died or gone from their lives.

This is why the understanding of the clients' problems is so great and so true.

REPEATED PRAYER

Such a one was a housewife I visited in Fall River. When I knocked at the door she was angry. Her eyes was strange and cold. I had interrupted her housework and would have to make an appointment. When I returned later in the day and she had learned of my sorrow, her compassion for me was so great that the expression on her face turned to gentleness.

Because I was posing for the sake of an investigation, I felt guilty when she gave me words of advice and hope, and when she even repeated a familiar prayer. She was intelligent and kind. I was deeply moved by her wish to make the suffering have strength of soul, so that when the seance was over, I said:

"You seem to have great faith."

The woman's face brightened and she smiled with joy.

"I'm so pleased you call it by that name. It means a great deal to me. That's just what it is, faith, but people don't always understand."

She demanded no money for two hours of her time. Hundreds were going to her for spiritual comfort, receiving what they might get in some church, but cluttered up with the lady's own notions. She told me she belonged to a Protestant church. The prayers she spoke were part of that church's creed. She quoted freely from the Bible. But she didn't leave it at that.

She shut her eyes, handled my ring and a billfold which I said was my husband's. "He is turning toward me, and there is a light around him. It is a dim light, which means he is living on earth."

SAW NO RED FIRE

When I asked her about the burning plane he was supposed to have gone down in, she said she saw no red fire, and that the plane simply hadn't returned to its base. "Eventually news will come of him. I cannot promise it will be good."

For an hour she concentrated, finally nodding her head up and down and saying, "Yes, yes, he is alive, definitely."

2 Noxon Jurors Mark Bridal Day

By PAULINE WARREN

PITTSFIELD, June 10—Taking advantage of a week-end recess in the murder trial of John F. Noxon, Jr.,—jurors relaxed today by celebrating the wedding anniversaries of two of their number—minus the presence of their wives.

Sympathetic waitresses at the hotel where the jurors are quartered tried to make up for the absence of the better halves by spreading a beautifully decorated banquet table and preparing a lavish meal.

Oddly enough, the anniversary-celebrating jurors sit side by side in the jury box during the trial.

One of them is D. Howard Brown of Dalton,, paper mill watchman, who celebrated the 25th anniversary of his marriage, while other congratulations went to Emil Bolza, Pittsfield newspaper compositor, for 32 years of marital happiness.

Bolza, incidentally, had made a rapid recovery after receiving a visit from his personal dentist last night for repairs to a troublesome dental plate.

Heavy rain during the day caused postponement of a planned outing for the jurors, but the wedding anniversaries made a happy substitute. The jurors will be taken to a famed eating place near by tomorrow for Sunday dinner.

Don't Look Now, But Rain MAY Keep Up

Moderate rain, enough at least to give harried victory gardeners some measure of relief for their parched crops, was promised today by the weatherman.

As Greater Boston entered its 47th consecutive day today without any appreciable rainfall, it was said a moderate rainstorm was moving eastward from New York state through central New England and that the southern part of this area would be the chief beneficiary.

A few scattered drops fell from a leaden sky in early afternoon.

In an hour or so, the drops merged into a light shower.

Meteorologist G. Harold Noyes estimated that the strawberry crop in Massachusetts and Connecticut will fall at least 25 per cent below normal volume.

At the same time, loss of the entire $1,000,000 tobacco crop in the Connecticut valley seemed imminent, with growers lacking the help to cart water enough to wet down the topsoil and permit replanting, while everywhere hay and other feed crops were reported "burning up in the fields."

In an effort to lighten the burden of strawberry growers, Louis A. Webster, state commissioner of agriculture, wired the Agriculture Department in Washington, urging that steps be taken to lift OPA ceilings to "at least 50 cents a box" in place of the current 32½ cents ceiling.

Maine's hay crop, upon which 220,000 cattle in that state are dependent for food each year, is "almost beyond repair," State Agriculture Commissioner Carl R. Smith reported.

Graves, Blood Tell Story of Beachhead

By WILLIAM STRINGER

WITH UNITED STATES FORCES IN NORMANDY, June 8 (delayed) (INS)—The American graves and blood on those blasted sands and rocks testify it was not easy at all.

The Americans who assaulted the beach—and lived—said it was hell, just plain unadulterated hell. Those piles of bodies, that mass of litter and twisted wreckage and blackened landslides of rubble are proof.

We had to fight through a blanket of German high explosives even when I went ashore, 36 hours after the initial assault force landed. By that time the Germans' murderous machinegun cross fire and mortars had been silenced.

The first 24 hours on this beach, a casualty said, were a vivid nightmare of torn bodies, exploding mines, sinking barges, bursting shells—of blood and death.

Whole bodies were blasted through the air by the ferocious German artillery fire, he said. Many men, hurled out of their assault boats by deadly artillery bursts, died in the water. Some reached the beach and crawled a few yards over the egg-sized rocks before they were hit.

I watched more than half of that inch by inch struggle up the beach from an LST about a mile off shore, and unable to discharge its artillery cargo until gun positions were secure.

From H-hour—6 a. m. Tuesday—until Wednesday afternoon the Americans' beach assault forces fought one of the war's bloodiest struggles against a section of one of the world's best defended coasts.

One of 8 Sons Lost, One a Hero

Good and bad news arrived simultaneously today for Mrs. Leon K. Ostler of Broadway, Chelsea, mother of eight sons in the armed forces, seven of whom are in action on world fighting fronts.

The sad news was a War Department notification that her son, Pvt. Charles J. Ostler, 31, veteran of the African, Sicilian and Italian campaigns, had been missing in action since May 14.

Balancing this was word from another son, Staff Sergt. Howard L. Ostler, that he had just received the Distinguished Flying Cross from Lieut. Gen. George H. Kenney in New Guinea. A Flying Fortress gunner for months in the South Pacific, this is the latest in a long string of decorations for achievement in combat.

The last word Mrs. Ostler received from her missing son was a letter dated May 6 in which he said everything was going well and he hoped to see her soon. She had not seen him since February, 1942, when he joined the Army.

Five other sons are believed to be taking active part in the invasion of France. They are Staff Sergt. George; Pfc. Robert and Pfc. Roland, twins; Pfc. Arthur and Pfc. Leon. The eighth son, Pvt. Donald Ostler, is training in this country.

WAC, Soldier Die In Air Fright Leap

DAYTON, O., June 10 (AP)—A WAC and an enlisted man, frightened while on a routine mission, leaped to their deaths from a plane just north of Dayton today, the Public Relations Office at Wright Field reported.

They were flying at low elevation in a B-25 Marauder bomber, the announcement said, and attempted to bail out when a parachute, released accidentally, began flapping against the plane. They were too low for their chutes to open, and were killed instantly. No [illegible]

5 Jap Warships Lost This Month

By RICHARD C. BERGHOLZ
Associated Press War Editor

Japan has lost at least five warships and three others, including a heavy cruiser, have been damaged since June 3 in vain attempts to bolster its weakening position in the Southwest Pacific.

Allied headquarters today trumpeted the latest Jap naval loss—four destroyers sunk, one damaged, in mast-height attacks by ten Mitchell medium bombers Thursday as the warships, together with a cruiser and another destroyer, sneaked through Geelvink Bay toward beleaguered Biak Island in the Schouten group.

The cruiser and undamaged destroyer streaked back toward Tokyo without reaching the Schoutens, and five of the ten Japanese fighters which attempted to break up the devastating Mitchell attack were shot down. Three American planes were lost.

The Japanese were faring no better in the Burma-India theater. Their major north Burma bases of Myitkyina, Mogaung and Kamaing were virtually surrounded and their forces retreating from Kohima, India, were offering only delaying opposition.

In central China, however, Japanese forces are said to be battling in the "outer defenses" of Changsha, capital of Hunan Province.

The Chinese high command announced enemy defenses of Lungling, important Burma road base, have been breached and Chinese troops have occupied the southern part of the city.

Fall of Lungling, one of Japan's two main bases in Yunnan Province, would jeopardize Jap forces to the north, where Chinese are within 12 airline miles of Tengchung and are closing in on Japanese headquarters at Watien.

100 Planes Join In Air Raid Test

In the biggest air raid test yet attempted in Massachusetts, nearly 100 Civil Air Patrol planes will sweep over Boston and other Bay State communities tomorrow in a simulated bombing affecting 4,000,000 residents.

The test, announced as the most complete check on civilian defenses ever tried in the nation, also ushers in the Fifth War Loan drive which begins Monday.

Haupt Convicted Again of Treason

CHICAGO, June 10 (AP)—For the second time in 18 months, Hans Max Haupt, 50-year-old father of an executed German saboteur, has been convicted of treason by a federal district court jury.

First convicted in November, 1942, on a charge of harboring his son, Herbert, one of eight Nazi saboteurs who came to the United States on a mission of sabotage, Haupt was sentenced to death but, with his wife and two other German-American couples, gained a new trial. Judge Barnes will rule on a motion for a new trial Wednesday.

MISS MARION DAVIES, NOTED FILM STAR
Honored by Jewish Home for the Aged

PATRICIA VAN CLEVE AND RABBI EDGAR F. MAGNIN
Miss Davies' Niece Accepts Gift for Famous Aunt

Juniors Pay Honor To Marion Davies

Special to Boston Evening American

LOS ANGELES, June 10—As the climax to an elaborate patriotic program, stressing good neighborliness, Miss Marion Davies, noted film star, was presented a handsome gold Mezzuzah by the junior auxiliary of the Jewish Home for the Aged.

In making the presentation of the finely-wrought design showing the Ten Commandments within the Ark of the Covenant, Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin said:

"Miss Davies has been of inestimable aid to this organization and deserves this tribute beyond words.

"It is by action such as hers that friendship is spread, and I hope she will realize the true and very great appreciation which goes with this gift."

HANGS ON DOOR POST

He explained that the Mezzuzah is the religious symbol which, hung on the door post, dedicates the home to good.

Miss Davies was unable to be present, and the gift was accepted in her behalf by her niece, Mrs. Arthur Lake (Patricia Van Cleve).

Mrs. Lake read a letter from Miss Davies to the Auxiliary's President, Mrs. Ida Mayer Cummings, in which she said:

"Dear Ida:

"I am very grateful for your letter with its kind suggestion.

"I do not think I deserve any recognition for my interest in so worthy and so appealing a cause.

"I am only too happy to join with you and my other good friends in support of the Home for the Aged. My check for $100 is enclosed for this purpose.

"Faithfully yours,
"MARION DAVIES."

LAUDS MISS DAVIES

In response, Mrs. Cummings told of the work Miss Davies has done in behalf of this and countless other worthy causes, and said:

"There has never been a time when I have written to or called Miss Davies, who is a life member of our organization, when she did not grant my wish.

"Miss Davies has always stood by us, and is deserving of much greater honor than we can give. But we are very happy indeed that she has agreed to accept this symbol of our great goodwill toward her."

The meeting was opened with parading of the colors by the Woodrow Wilson Post No. 317, American Legion, and by the singing of the Star-Spangled Banner, led by the operatic star, Betty Jaynes.

The Good-Neighbor theme was presented by Ernesto Romero, Mexican vice-consul, Dr. Magnin, Father Victor V. White of Loyola University, and Mary Pickford.

PRIEST GIVES ADVICE

"There can never be friendship among the various groups, either within nations or between nations, until we have dissipated that ignorance upon which disagreements and discords seize," Father White said.

"My advice is, 'be friendly to the man you don't like, and find out if what you believe about him is not false, born of your own ignorance about him'."

Romero said the Mexican people represent an ally which is "100 per cent with you."

"People of Spanish descent love liberty and are a democratic people in every sense of the word," he stated.

Mrs. Jay Paley, chairman, greeted the assemblage of more than 1000 junior auxiliary members and friends in the Biltmore Bowl. Others extending greetings and giving short talks included Mrs. Louis B. Mayer, official hostess, and Mrs. Bessie J. Schwab, co-chairman. Mrs. Leiland Atherton Irish was chairman.

In response to an appeal from Mrs. Schwab, who is past president of the auxiliary, more than $75,000 in Fifth War Loan Bonds was subscribed.

Firemen to Conduct Memorial Services

Members of the department will parade from fire headquarters, Bristol st., to Lenox st., where they will board Elevated cars to the cemetery. Charles S. O'Connor, clerk of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, will be the orator.

Deweyites for Taft As Platform Head

By the Associated Press

Supporters of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York were reported today to have thrown their weight behind Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio for the chairmanship of the important platform committee of the Republican national convention.

Taft heads an Ohio delegation pledged to support Gov. John W. Bricker of that State for the presidential nomination, and the reputed action of some of Dewey's friends was regarded generally as a preconvention harmony move.

The resolutions committee, consisting of two members from each state, will meet in Chicago June 21 to elect its officers and begin hearings on the platform to be recommended to the convention opening June 26.

Selection of delegates was to be concluded today with Nevada Republicans picking six.

Gov. Dwight Griswold of that state released his six pledged delegates and urged them to vote for Dewey, but T. H. Maenner of Omaha, president of the Bricker-for-President Clubs, said the delegates were "not subject to dictation" by Griswold.

Insurance Rule Hit by Bricker

NEW YORK, June 10 (INS)—Gov. Bricker of Ohio today pointed to the recent Supreme Court decision subjecting insurance companies to federal control as part of the "continued encroachment upon state sovereignty" by the present Administration.

Bricker, candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, spoke over a national network last night.

"It has been evident for some time that the New Deal bureaucrats were casting covetous glances at the huge pool of assets of the insurance companies," Bricker said.

'Chutists Attacked By French Snipers

By CLARK LEE

WITH THE UNITED STATES FORCES IN FRANCE (delayed) June 8—Although the majority of French people obviously were glad to see us, there was some disconcerting evidence occasionally among Frenchmen who had been actively aiding the Germans. A number of cases were reported of French snipers.

One such was verified by a group of paratroops whose buddy was shot and seriously wounded by snipers while still struggling to get out of his chute. A woman fired in the darkness from 30 yards away, hitting the trooper in the back when he returned the fire.

Daylight found the French woman sniper dead with her rifle beside her outside a German barracks.

Our infantry also reported encountering an increasing number of French snipers. Exactly what took place in this area in the past four years is not known, but it is a fact there are many young Frenchmen walking about freely, and also plenty of fat cattle not taken by the Germans.

A gentle old French woman, dressed in black with the traditional Norman white scarf around her neck, was "hostess" for three months to the captain commanding German coastal defense batteries in this sector.

"The captain went to bed as usual the night before your landing," she said.

"He wasn't excited. He seemed not to be expecting anything extraordinary.

AWAKENED BY HIS MEN

"About 3 in the morning your planes began bombarding the beach five miles from us, but even then the captain stayed in bed for another hour and a half.

"Then a lot of German soldiers drove up at full speed. They pounded on the door.

"I got up and let them in. They ran in to wake the captain. 'Hauptmann, Hauptmann, the enemy is coming,' they shouted, and told him that warships were shelling the beach.

"Then the captain got dressed. He was in a hurry then. He went out to the battery, but before he left my house he said he would come back.

"I hope that's the last I've seen of him."

The old woman said the Germans always behaved correctly, paid for their food and wine and never discussed the war. I asked her opinion of Gen. De Gaulle and things in general and she replied with the peasant wisdom of France:

"Talk to me of eggs and I'll discuss them. Of politics I know nothing."

RESERVE WEARS OFF

On the wall of her living room, however, was a picture of Marshal Petain.

Other people became less reluctant as the reserve shown on D-Day began to break down, and every passing tank, gun and soldier seemed to assure the French we were here to stay, and that there was no fear of the Germans returning to punish them.

They still call the Germans "ces messieurs" (those gentlemen), but they do put a measure of contempt into their words.

In the stone-floored kitchen of the woman's farmhouse, before its great fireplace with shiny brass pots and pans and ever-cooking "pot a feu," neighbors gathered around with the skinny youngsters. They took cigarettes, but didn't smoke them—"saving them for our old ones"—they said. The "old ones" were their husbands, in normal times a gravestone carver, a house painter and the like.

In return for the cigarettes they gave us eggs, yellow butter and cream—a marvelous treat for anyone coming from eggless, butterless England.

"We never gave eggs to 'ces messieurs,'" one of the old ladies said with something of a smirk.

Then they brought out some excellent bordeaux—six years old by the label and dry in the taste—and after the second glass talked a little more freely.

Boston Escapes Labor Rationing

There is no immediate danger that labor rationing will be imposed in Boston, Leon J. Kowal, Boston Area Director of the War Manpower Commission assured today, despite similar action taken in the critical New Bedford area.

Kowal said the action of the New Bedford committee has no effect upon Boston, which has its own committee.

LONDON, June 10 (AP)—Moscow announced today that Soviet troops had crumpled a localized German attack northwest of Tarnopol in old Poland as Red Army preparations for a new eastern front offensive brought more indications of uneasiness in Germany and among the Axis' Balkan satellites.

WAR EQUIPMENT TO SAVE LIVES

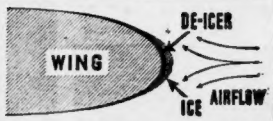
to remove ice from the wings of fighting planes ... to keep our pilots flying higher, longer and SAFER

(Arrows in illustration indicate De-Icers attached to leading edges on wings of B-24). De-Icers are a skin-like surface of rubber containing inflatable tubes which, when expanded, stretch and deform the surface, thus cracking, breaking, and throwing off the coating of ice which has formed.

HERE'S HOW THEY WORK



When not in operation, the tubes in the De-Icer collapse against the surface of the wing. While the tubes are flat on the surface, a coating of ice may form.

When a coating of ice forms on the De-Icer, the center tube is inflated by compressed air. This cracks the coating of ice along the leading edge of the wings.

As the center tube deflates, the outer tubes inflate. This loosens and raises the cracked ice from the wing surface so that the air stream can get under it and blow it away, restoring the original smooth surface of the wing.

The B. F. Goodrich Company research laboratories developed and patented De-Icers in 1920-21 as a commercial project. This device was later adopted by the Army and Navy as the only proven, practical and successful method for removing ice from the wings of planes.

During this war time period De-Icers are being manufactured at the factory of the HOOD RUBBER COMPANY — a Division of The B. F. Goodrich Company. Practically all of the employees producing this important equipment for the safety of our flyers, are women.

These women, many of whom were inexperienced, even though working part time, four or five hour shifts, soon acquired exceptional skill in making De-Icers.

It is on such patriotic women that we depend for the production of all the important war products and civilian merchandise which is manufactured at the Hood Rubber Company. We take this opportunity to publicly acknowledge their cooperative efforts.

De-Icers for planes, described at the left, are only one of many devices made in our factory to protect the lives of our fighting men.

Three Army-Navy Production Awards have been received by Hood Employees for excellence in the production of War Equipment.

Smart Set Greets Debs at Cotillion

By BETTY ALDEN

ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY DAUGHTERS of Boston's first families, the debutantes of 1944-45, danced their way into the social spotlight last night at the first Debutante Cotillion since before the war. The event was a dinner and waltzing party at the Copley Plaza, sponsored by prominent socialites to benefit Wells Memorial. The mass debut occurred at midnight when the debutantes and their escorts took part in a grand march.

Our wartime debs are the prettiest and most democratic group of society girls to come out in many a season. Through associations in war work at hospitals, farming, canteens and business offices they've evidently learned that costly furs, jewels, lavish gowns and freely flowing champagne are not the most important ingredients for a lively debutante ball.

To a lass they are charming, well mannered and vivacious. And gentlemen who prefer blondes are lucky this year for golden haired lassies far outnumber the brunettes. The long bob is the most popular hairdo and most of the girls wore simple flower ornaments in their tresses.

Though simplicity was the rule as to gowns the girls did their best to observe some of the well loved pre-war traditions of femininity such as orchid corsages, wristlets of gardenias, long white gloves and full skirts to swirl in graceful folds as they waltzed around.

40 IN WEBSTER PARTY

One of the merriest groups was the party for 40 given in honor of Nancy Webster. The hostess wore a white tulle gown threaded with silver and with perky tulle bows on the shoulders. She had a corsage of purple orchids and carried a nosegay of white sweet peas while receiving guests at cocktails in the State Suite before dinner.

Her table was decorated with pink peonies from the Edwin S. Webster gardens (her uncle and aunt) and novel cellophane dolls holding miniature baskets of flowers. Her guests included Alison T. Kelsey in a swishy ashes of roses gown trimmed with matching sequins; blonde and vivacious Ann Sargent, whose white chiffon was trimmed with rosettes of ostrich feathers, and Jane Faulkner in a striking combination of apple green taffeta and black lace.

Patty Jenney of Brookline, elected chairman of Junior League provisional members this week, was escorted by Bill Woodrow who won his diploma from Andover recently. She wore a tiny ermine tippet over a silver and white dress and had Bill's bouvardia corsage pinned to her shoulder.

MANY WEAR HOOP SKIRTS

Fiona Munroe made good use of the flowers in her parents' Milton gardens to set off her flowing white chiffon gown. On her shoulder was a beautiful cluster of violet rhododendron and in her hair a dainty spray of yellow and white syringa. Before the ball she was one of the guests at the cocktail party in honor of Jean MacDill and Barbara Morss at the Harvard Club. Jean wore ice blue tulle and ostrich feathers and was squired by Robert Knudson of Harvard Medical School. Barbara's modish white faille was appliqued on the full skirt with blue and red sequins.

Hoop skirts were the choice of a number of social butterflies. Barbara Hale, escorted by Bob Hart, Harvard V12, had a hoop under her white chiffon that was liberally sprinkled with rhinestones. Jane Richmond's hoop-skirted frock was champagne color taffeta and Joyce Baker of the reddish gold tresses had a cute white one. Her gloves were white lace mesh.

One peppy group included Sheila Driscoll, president of the graduating class at Beaver Country Day. Jane Alles, who wore her graduation present—an antique gold heart—on the bodice of her white chiffon, and June Rockwood in flowered chintz.

Cynthia Teel, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Elbridge Teel, chose white starched lace with a black velvet sash. She was at a table with Richard Hunneman, Elizabeth Winsor, Elsie P. Johnson, and Calef Brown. Elsie's necklace of tiny silver balls was a gift from her family when she graduated from Miss Porter's this week. Sabra Harwood, another Boston deb, and her classmate at Miss Porter's, was also at the dance.

GOWN OF ICE BLUE SATIN

Barbara Evans and Lieut. Ross Young, Jr., who is stationed in Boston, came on to dine and waltz after the MacDill-Morss cocktail party. Barbara wore a seed pearl necklace and carried a matching pocketbook with her frock of turquoise blue lace and tulle, and Ross presented her with a corsage of gardenias and bouvardia.

Joanna Pierce, a tall statuesque blonde, had tiny butterfly orchids tied with green net for a hair ornament and wore a gown of ice blue satin. She was escorted by "Boly" Shurtleff of Cambridge, and was in a group with Sally Bowen, a Concord Academy graduate, and Sarah Ann Foster, who has just completed her studies at Cambridge School. Their beaux were Curt Beck of Dallas, Tex., and Alfred Oxenham of Amagansett, N Y. Sally had a wristlet of gardenias and an orchid corsage and her gown of white chiffon had striking panels of flame chiffon down the front. Sarah Ann chose a lovely creation of cream tulle and lace.

line south of Montebourg," 15 miles southeast of the port.

Montebourg is midway below Valognes and Ste. Mere Eglise. Vichy radio announced loss of Edmondville, between Ste. Mere Eglise and Montebourg.

The Germans also reported new Allied gains below Bayeux toward the key mid-peninsula town of St. Lo.

Supreme Headquarters said the Germans' 12th SS armored division, 41st armored and 716th and 352d infantry divisions were fighting in the Caen area, and that the 709th German infantry was engaged in the Ste. Mere Eglise sector.

Lieut.-Gen. Omar Bradley's American parachutists and infantrymen alone have captured more than 3000 prisoners, half of them Nazi parachute veterans of Russian and Cassino, seized after they plunged from the skies.

The Allies since D-Day have taken more than 5000 captives.

British and Canadian forces meanwhile battled German armored divisions in the greatest tank engagement since the landings, near Caen, stronghold of the eastern flank.

Allied shells also tore into Caen Berlin asserted "Allied military strength assembled in the Caen-Bayeux area has been thrown in the direction of Cherbourg."

NAZI RESISTANCE BREAKS

Another broadcast said Americans in the Carentan area attacked Friday with four infantry divisions and a tank division, and "new paratroops were landed behind German lines," forcing the Germans to withdraw northward and northwestward.

An official Allied front dispatch, without identifying the exact sector, declared German resistance which had been strong "began to break yesterday afternoon" and the "indications now are that the Germans are having considerable difficulty, throwing in reinforcements indiscriminately." It said U. S. forces pressed forward against mild resistance, capturing one town and "a handful of villages."

Gen. Bradley told correspondents he was "satisfied" with American progress, but expected a German counterattack shortly in three-division strength.

Supreme headquarters gave no indication of the distances gained toward Cherbourg from Ste. Mere Eglise, or in the push to the south toward Carentan.

The 3000 prisoners seized by Americans represented every nationality, U. S. air-borne troops cut up a German parachute division which had fought in Russia, taking 800 to 1000 prisoners. Shortly afterward a German paratroop battalion which had fought at bloody Cassino in Italy was dropped but the whole unit of 500 to 800 men, coming down on top of American positions, was captured.

German brodcasts said 400,000 men were fighting on the Normandy peninsula, with about 200,000 on each side.

With improving weather, Allied sky fleets, including up to 500 American heavy bombers, ripped at Nazi railways, roads, troop and tank concentrations behind the battle line, and at airfields in France. U. S. Marauder airmen reported Allied shells bursting in Caen, defended by the Nazis as a key point in their protective belt.

NAZIS ENCIRCLED

The Germans admitted some Nazi strongholds of the Atlantic Wall had been encircled, but said they still were resisting.

Fifteen hundred prisoners were claimed by the Germans, who also said 175 Allied tanks had been destroyed.

The Allies near Caen smashed German attempts to break into the beachhead and inched toward Caen.

The RAF returned last night to the attack, its heavy bombers in strong force bombing airfields and rail centers ahead of the beachhead. And today, after a 15-hour lull, Allied medium and fighter-bombers streamed back in impressive numbers to the support of the beachhead.

rentan on two sides. This vital town, a third of the way across the foot of the Cherbourg peninsula, was of great importance to the Germans and they were fighting desperately to hold it.

FOIL 3 DIVISIONS

Field Marshal Rommel threw three armored divisions into attacks from Caen—and between Caen and Bayeux—in an effort to drive to the sea and break up the beachhead into sections which could be dealt with separately.

But every attempt he made failed, in the face of British and Canadian troops determined to stand or die. They fired at tanks over open sights from less than 200 yards.

Rommel was reported using all the reserves immediately at hand in his effort to break through.

Bitter fighting occurred at Carentan. The land in this area is marshy and cut by rivers. If the Allies could smash across the Cherbourg peninsula here, they could turn and deal at their convenience with the important port of Cherbourg on the tip of the peninsula.

In this area the main part of the fighting was by infantry. The country is not suitable for large-scale tank warfare.

The Germans admitted the Americans had advanced a mile from Ste. Mere-Eglise.

The Germans attempted to block the advance of American airborne forces by dropping parachutists of their own but a field dispatch said the Americans had captured 800 of these elite Hitler airborne forces which landed almost on top of American units.

3000 PRISONERS ARRIVE

Behind the American advance against Geramn resistance, which field reports described as weakening, there lay a bloodstained and shell-torn terrain which told of desperate fighting.

Piles of litter and twisted wreckage dotted the blackened landscape strewn with bodies of both Germans and Americans.

The Americans fought one of the bloodiest beachhead struggles of the war before linking up with the air-borne units, but now they were moving faster.

Two thousand German prisoners had arrived in Britain, and Allied headquarters said several thousand more were en route.

Annihilate Nazis In Chateau Chase

By RICHARD D. McMILLAN

Representing the Combined American Press

WITH BRITISH-AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 10 (AP)—Welsh Tommies chased the Nazis from the dining room of their chateau headquarters into the gilded Louis XIV salon and then into the bedrooms.

They almost had control of the situation when German reinforcements arrived with 88mm guns and opened fire. The Welsh retired into the undergrowth outside the building. Their situation was critical.

Then, just in the nick of time, a battalion of veteran American infantrymen appeared unexpectedly from the west, slogging through the underbrush. They swarmed into the chateau with machine guns. They smashed up a lot of furniture and drilled a lot of holes in the walls and windows and also in a lot of Germans. Soon there were no more Germans.

Let Us Pray

FLAG DAY, the day the American people traditionally set apart and observe in peace and in war for special display and praise of the flag of our country, is at hand again.

This year it should be a time of devout prayer as well, and in many communities of the land Sunday, June 11, will be observed as a special day of prayer.

Since general observance of the actual anniversary, June 14, would interrupt vital war production, designation of the preceding Sunday is a commendable recognition of patriotic necessity and duty.

Every city and town in the United States should surely have a day of public prayer for the lives and safety of our boys, for their victory and for the peace they are assuring to us.

It is wholly fitting that such a day should be combined with our traditional day of proud and reverent tribute to our flag.

The prayers of the American nation on this Flag Day will flow from the full and anxious hearts of our people.

The mighty armies assembled by the United States and its Allies are today on a mission of liberation in Europe.

The American flag flies there with honor.

It is flying with honor and with hope all over the world.

It is undaunted and unsullied over all the far-flung battle lines of this great war.

Lest we forget, it is still cherished in the hearts of American men and women who have endured the living death of captivity ever since the despairing defense of Corregidor.

THE AMERICAN FLAG is physically and visually beautiful, spiritually immortal.

On June 14, 1777, the American Congress brought into official being the flag of the United States, "representing a new constellation."

Upon hearing of this action, General Washington said reverently:

"A new constellation has arisen which shall shortly flame wide through the skies."

The poet, Joseph Rodman Drake, wrote that its colors "were born in heaven."

Julia Ward Howe said of it:

"It's stripes were a holy lesson, its spangles a deathless creed."

Oliver Wendell Holmes penned this line about it:

"Many an eye has danced to see that banner in the sky."

This is the time we lift our eyes to it, as Americans who honor it and praise it.

This is the time we pledge anew our love and devotion to it.

This is the time we pray for those serving under it, and giving their lives for it.

FLAG DAY should be a day of REMEMBRANCE. A day of REJOICING, a day of REVERENCE, a day of GRATITUDE.

Most of all it should be a day of PRAYERFUL DEDICATION.

The beautiful and glorious American flag is a benefaction to us, and an obligation upon us.

Let us fly it proudly.

Let us look upon it adoringly.

Let us serve it loyally.

Above all, let us be worthy of it now and deserve its benefactions and safeguard the free institutions of which it is a symbol and secure those benefactions to all future Americans.

Flag Day is as AMERICAN as the flag itself.

Pledge yourself to its principles, dedicate yourself to its institutions. Devote yourself to its high aims and thus reap its great promise.

WASHINGTON, June 10 — Along about this time every four years the heavy thinkers remove their elbows from Rodin's knee and start hullabalooing about the electoral college.

They perform dervish dances all over the campus. One group howls that it will do or die for dear old electoral. The other retorts with catcalls, denouncing electoral as nothing but an institution for the wayward and delinquent.

This year the clamoring is worse than ever, because the Southern Democrats are muttering dire threats of what they will do to electoral if Mr. Roosevelt gets the nomination. The New Dealers, in turn, profess to see a horrid plot in the making —a situation they consider very distasteful, if not a downright infringement of copyright.

As you know, the electors are elected by the people, after which they gather and cast their votes for a President. The general idea is that Democratic electors vote for the Democratic candidate and Republican electors do as much for the choice of their party.

There is no power that can force them to do this because the framers of the Constitution thought it would be nice to have the electors more or less untrammeled. Personally, I am not going to start belting the founding fathers, but, if you care to do so, that is your unalienable privilege.

DESPITE any compulsion, however, the electors always have been faithful to their trust. I only know of one who ever tossed his vote the wrong way—and he did it for a gag.

The lone offender is Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the New York State Racing Commission. I have heard Swope tell this story on himself and I hope he will not mind my repeating it.

In 1936 he was one of the New York Democratic electors. He went to Albany where the electors were to pitch their ballots into a huge Greek urn.

In the chamber were Governor Lehman, Jim Farley, Ed Flynn and a bunch of other New York luminaries. They were all very solemn. Suddenly Swope felt an attack of kittenishness coming on.

"I am going to crash through to everlasting fame!" he announced.

FARLEY STOPPED chewing his gum and asked how.

"You see this ballot?" said Swope. "I am going to cast it for Alf Landon!"

Governor Lehman, who has never favored kittenishness, was horrified.

"My Dear Herbert!" he exclaimed. "You can't do it! You really can't, you know!"

"The devil I can't," retorted Swope. "There is nothing in the law or the prophets to stop me. Look up the Constitution!"

A heated debate followed in which practically all joined except Ed Flynn. Flynn let it run its course, then growled:

"Ignore the cut-up. Let him vote for Julius Caesar if he wants to. Don't forget—I am the New York Secretary of State and I have to certify the count. I just won't count his ballot, that's all!"

In recounting the episode, Swope made one commentary.

"I was actually just talking theory," he said. "But see what happened. Mr. Flynn represented the practical—and the practical won!"

SOMETHING TELLS me the practical will continue to triumph. The South would kill the American party system if its electors ran out—and the South knows it. If President Roosevelt is beaten—I'll bet you—it won't be by any skullduggery in the electoral college.

I WISH to tell you about Brig.-Gen. Leon A. Fox, the lousiest general in the United States Army.

Before rising to your hind feet and yelping: "How dare you talk that way about a member of our armed services!" Please be informed that this is Gen. Fox's own characterization of himself.

The general is Field Director of the United States Typhus Commission. He was telling us that typhus is transmitted from man to man only through the body louse.

He said the Army now has a vaccine that gives 100 per cent protection against death from typhus.

"I made many personal experiments," he said. "I put a bunch of lice on myself and let them go to work. I might say that I was bitten very thoroughly.

"Boys, I was the lousiest general in the Army!"

THE UNITED PRESS, which pulled the fake armistice, waited 26 years to get back at the Associated Press for its premature invasion flash. Then it pulled another blooper.

It worked out a facsimile of AP's phony teletype message for a New York paper. But instead of inserting the AP credit, the operator put in a UP slug, so that the tape read:

"LONDON (UP)—Gen. Eisenhower's Headquarters, etc. . . ."

Now UP is red-faced all over again.

Joan Fontaine

I talked to David Selznick and learned he met with her agent, a Jules Stein representative, on Thursday and offered to set up a trust fund in addition to her salary. Because of the wage stabilization law, it is impossible to give an increase in money.

"Joan has been offered so many important pictures," he said, "and turned down so many that I felt I must know her reason. Among the pictures are 'Olympe,' the Billy Wilder-Charles Brackett movie at Paramount; 'Dishonorable Lady,' with Hunt Stromberg; 'Weekend at the Waldorf' at M-G-M—these are a few of the scripts offered her, to say nothing of several others equally or more important. I think there must be some reason or she wouldn't find all of these not to her liking. She hasn't made a picture since 'Jane Eyre' at 20th."

The 51 Club is willing to share Frankie Hyers with the Theater Guild for the Lee Dixon role in "Oklahoma"! on condition that the Guild management preserve his rowdy diction . . . "Follow the Girls" has chalked up a profit of $50,000 so far . . . Al Jolson will motor to the West Coast, playing hundreds of Army camps in out-of-the-way places en route. The OPA granted the USO request for fuel in his behalf . . . Father Gehring, the Navy priest who was one of the heroes of Guadalcanal, is writing a book about his war adventures.

Star Shine By Sidney Skolsky

HOLLYWOOD, June 10—There doesn't seem to be anything that can hurt the movies. The movies have survived and progressed despite everything, including themselves.

I'll start telling you about it with the advent of talking pictures. The majority of film companies were frightened by talking pictures and opposed to them.

They objected because the talk would break the illusion that pictures created. Adolph Zukor at a meeting went so far as to say: "Talking pictures will never go. People go to the movies to sleep and the sound will disturb them."

But talking pictures didn't hurt the movies. It didn't ruin them. In fact, it made the movies more important than ever, attracting finer talents in every division.

THE MOVIES have been able to hurdle all obstacles, even turn them to their advantage. During the depression, when most leading industries suffered, the movies were least affected.

With the start of the war and Hitler's conquest of Europe, the movies were affected again. They lost their foreign market and this, the executives claimed, was the main source of their revenue.

However, the loss of this main foreign market didn't have this result. Today bigger and costlier pictures are being made and they are grossing more than ever—enough to compensate for practically no foreign market—in the United States.

WITH THE WAR, the movies are fulfilling many duties and have achieved an importance they never had before. They are making many contributions in various ways.

The documentary and combat films not only help to teach both soldiers and civilians, are not only morale builders, but, also, are a lasting pictorial record for history of today's current events. Then there are the "escapist films" which are entertainment not only for the service men but for the civilians who seek this diversion more than ever before.

And even now, in London, there is a batch of Hollywood films, dubbed in different foreign languages, waiting to follow the invasion forces into the various cities and countries as they are liberated. The motion pictures, despite what some people might say about them, are playing an important role.

Boston After Dark

THE MOST-PLAYED POPULAR TUNE these days and nights of Invasion has been "The Time Is Now," and apt it is . . . "I Started to Sneeze at Lake Louise When It Got Damp at Banff," is something else again in titles—although it has nothing to do with any war except a possible one against Spike Jones, who thought it up . . . A roundsman of the town is getting an idea now, as to the extent in which Bostonians are under arms . . . It seems that every taxi driver, bartender, entertainer, hotel manager, newspaperman, policeman—and members of other crafts too numerous to mention—has a close relative in the liberating forces.

YOU HEAR REGRETS in some quarters that there is no World War II duplicate of the old YD, in which Massachusetts men chiefly were the soldiers . . . In this war, the boys from this section were assigned to widely separated units of all the services . . . Most citizens will agree that the sensible scattering of combatants is the preferable plan . . . The New Mexico cities and towns which gave up entire companies to the Japs at Bataan because the New Mexico National Guard had been sent intact to the Philippines are bereft communities . . . Church services this Sunday are expected to be as well attended as at Easter or Christmas.

WHETHER THE TENSION has been eased slightly now that the Invasion has been launched is debatable . . . But the fact is that the hotel dine-and-dance rooms began to show marked improvements in business Wednesday night . . . After the successful landings in North Africa, the gay spots became a barometer to the public's desire to get away from the fireside, and to rub elbows with their fellows . . . This Thursday was a busy night, and reservations began to come into the headwaiters' stands on Wednesday for Saturday night . . . The effect of the mighty effort being made in France is apparent in the reduction of the number of uniforms one now sees around the bistros.

GREAT REPORTS OF young Ethel Barrymore Colt's reaping in "Tonight or Never" are banging real money to the box office of the Cambridge Summer Theater . . . The coolish weather is helping, too. . . But it will get hot again soon (we predict with some trepidation) and this corner's favorite Boston theater, the Colonial, will continue to reap returns for Manager Saul Kaplan's foresightedness in giving the famous old house a thoroughly good air-conditioning system . . . "Three's a Family" has caught on, and the engagement may be extended again.

LATER REPORTS from Florida say that Al Gaines, one of the three Gaines brothers from Boston who have become prominent in Miami, was killed while flying his own plane on civilian air patrol . . . The crash took place midway between Hollywood and Ft. Lauderdale when Al's plane failed to make altitude and catapulted to earth from a mere 100-foot altitude . . . Services were held at Levesque's Funeral Parlor in Brookline, with interment at New Calvary Cemetery, West Roxbury.

JERRY VOGEL, who published George M. Cohan's songs, has sent out a heartwarming letter to hundreds of George's friends asking their co-operation in honoring a grand old trouper's memory on this July 4 . . . "It would have been George's 66th birthday . . . In honoring America on that day, how better can we do it than by saluting George M. Cohan's memory with the songs he gave his country? Especially this Independence Day, no program will be complete without such timely, spirit-lifting melodies as George's immortal 'You're a Grand Old Flag,' 'Yankee Doodle Boy,' 'Over There,' 'Mary's a Grand Old Name' and 'Give My Regards to Broadway'" . . . Those who knew the quality of the friendship which existed between George and his publisher realize that no taint of commercialism inspires the Vogel appeal for songs of his lamented friend.

Paper Salvage Here Praised

Praising the people of Boston and New England for their wholehearted support of the nation's salvage program, Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board urged everyone to redouble his efforts in order to meet the requirements of the invasion of Europe.

"I am confident that the householders and the business firms of this area, already recognized among the leaders in salvage and conservation of materials needed to sustain our arms in the battle of death will continue to strive to hold that position and fulfill their obligations to their fighting men," he said.

Nelson said that 8,000,000 tons of waste paper are needed this year to meet demands of the military and essential business and pointed out that several hundred thousand items, from tank parts to pins, are shipped overseas in paper cartons.

"With the start of the assault on Nazi held Europe, we have a deeper obligation to the armed services," he said. "We must look upon every scrap of waste paper as a potential weapon in the hands of men we are confident will smash the enemy wherever he is found."

The WPB chief singled out for particular praise local housewives who have lifted Massachusetts to second place among the 48 states in salvaging kitchen fats and fifth in tin cans.

Hanlon Hearing Off to June 15

A hearing on the petition to oust Gordon B. Hanlon from management of the Aldred Investment Trust has been continued for further sessions in Federal Court June 15 following public admission that sale last February of $835,000 worth of utilities was made so that Suffolk Downs race track could be purchased.

Hanlon said that the stocks—9350 shares of Pennsylvania and Maryland power and light utilities—were sold because their value was threatened by a federal flood control and hydro-electric project on the Susquehanna river.

Hanlon denied that he had the power to name trustees of the Aldred Trust just because he controlled 10,000 shares of stock. He added that he believed the officers chosen at the last election would prove beneficial for the stockholders.

Ex-Convict Begins Term in Girl Attack

Nicholas Blevins, 22, of Hancock st., West End, an ex-convict, today began a one-year term in the House of Correction after pleading guilty in Suffolk superior court to charges of simple assault on a girl and carrying a revolver.

According to police, Blevins forced his way into the apartment of Miss Gertrude Monahan, 24, also of Hancock st., and threatened her.

Flynn-Lucas Hit Extends Run

Warners' Errol Flynn-Paul Lukas co-starrer, "Uncertain Glory," is being held over on the Paramount and Fenway screens. Flynn and Lukas play a French criminal and police inspector respectively, who join forces to outwit their common enemy, the Nazis. Lucille Watson, Jean Sullivan and Faye Emerson head the supporting cast. Also holding over is "Good-Night, Sweetheart," comedy-romance with Bob Livingston and Ruth Terry.

Now in its sixth week at the Majestic Theater, "The Song of Bernadette" continues to do capacity business. The film version of Franz Werfel's best-selling novel, which garnered five Academy Awards, including a "best performance" for the starring Jennifer Jones, has just concluded a 19-week engagement in New York and is to be road-showed through the rest of the year. Importantly featured in this absorbing and beautiful story of the little peasant girl of Lourdes are Charles Bickford, Vincent Price, Gladys Cooper, Anne Revere and Lee J. Cobb.

JVA Boys Among Farm Graduates

With 124 boys from all parts of the state, including members of the Junior Victory Army taking the course, the Victory Farm Volunteer Training program, under direction of Rollin H. Barrett, professor of farm management at Mass. State College, has closed after a 10-week run.

The graduates include 17 boys from Greater Boston and 41 from Worcester County.

All work was of a seasonal nature and the course lasted five days. The boys were taught safety measures in the dairy laboratory, the farm shop and the teaming course on the college farm. Studies included tractor shop, young stock barn, harnessing, horse barn, teaming and instruction in the care and handling of milk.

Evenings were spent in recreational activities, including baseball, basketball, horseshoe pitching and swimming.

The boys were recruited from high schools through the county emergency farm labor heads, and were 14 to 16, too young for either the armed services or industry.

To join the JVA, send your name, age and address to Junior Victory Army, Box 128, Boston, Mass. If, in addition to enlistment, you want the JVA insignia pin and membership card, enclose a 10-cent coin well-wrapped in your letter.

Read the next JVA story in Sunday's Advertiser.

Boy, 3, Hit by Engine Slightly Scratched

Struck by a Boston and Maine switching engine, three-year-old Thomas Hegner of Neptune st., Lynn, today had only a tiny scratch on his ear for proof of his experience.

The youngster was hit while on the railroad tracks near Shepard st., Lynn, but doctors at Lynn Hospital could find no reason for keeping him.

Mack Gets Option On Larry Bolvin

By JACK CONWAY

THE $5000 ADDED Plymouth Rock, a six-furlong sprint, featured today's eight-race card at Suffolk Downs. The list of entries included Armistice Day, Challamore, First of All, Sophocles, Sollure, Baroque, Valdina Alpha, Bring Me Home, Defense, Valdina Punch and Diego Red. First of all, Bring Me Home and Barogue were scratched today.

Valdina Punch was assigned top weight of 122 pounds. Irving Gushen's Diego Red was given only 105 pounds by Racing Secretary Charley McLennan.

Charley McLennan

The track at Suffolk Downs has been lightning fast all week. If the same condition prevailed this afternoon, racegoers were due to witness the fastest six furlongs race held so far during the meeting.

There were numerous New England favorites in the other races on the card, and it is expected that this will increase the betting. It is likely that the day's mutuel handle will roll merrily past the million dollar mark. Earl Gibson, boss of the mutuels, asserts he would not be surprised if the handle tops $1,200,000.

Track Normal Again

RACING conditions are back to normal at Suffolk Downs following Thursday's riot when 250 persons swarmed on to the track and held up the racing. With the favorites having a good day on Friday, the form players were in high glee. Johnny J., who paid $25.20 to win, and Money Muss, $46.60, added some joy to the life of the long shot players.

The stewards closed out the disputed race, barring the future entry of Bayport until he is corrected on bearing in. Jockey Harry Pratt, who admitted that Bayport raced over towards the rail and interfered with the chances of other horses, was cleared of any wrong doing. Jockey Herb Trent, who was up on Bayport in a previous race, told the stewards that the horse bears in towards the rail.

Chairman Charles F. Connors of the Massachusetts Racing Commission conferred with the stewards and track officials and all phases of the riot case were considered. It was the first time in the history of New England racing that the crowd ever swarmed on to a track, and the Commission is anxious to see that safeguards are set up that will prevent a recurrence of the trouble.

Option on Bolvin

MATCHMAKER EDDIE MACK, with more than 30 years of background in the boxing game, realizes the uncertainties of the ring sport, and so has secured an exclusive 90-day option on the services of Larry Bolvin, New England featherweight champion, who is going to clash with Manuel Ortiz, Mexican holder of the world's bantamweight title, in a 10-round bout at National League Park on June 29.

Under the terms of the option, Bolvin must engage in two bouts for Mack's Callahan A. C. and clash with the opponents named by the promoter. Willie Pep, world's featherweight champion, would be sent against Bolvin at National League Park on July 17 in the event he upset Ortiz.

Ortiz, who has his own baseball club, hoped to work out with the Red Sox before today's game with the Yanks. The Mexican plays second base. His team is one of the best on the Coast. It took the Pirates 12 innings to beat Ortiz' club by a score of 1 to 0.

School Title Game Monday

It's Newton and Medford Monday p. m. at Braves Field in the Eastern Interscholastic Writers Association final playdown for the sectional championship and the right to play the Western representative next week for the state crown.

The final couldn't be better as it brings two of the best high school pitchers in this region together and a brilliant mound battle is in the making.

BULLETIN

Newton and Medford will meet in their title game on Monday at 5:15 p. m. at Braves Field, it was announced today when rain forced postponement.

The two opposing hurlers are George Morehouse of Medford and Frank McManus of Newton. The Mustang flinger sports a perfect record of eight victories against no defeats while young McManus is only slightly behind with a 7-1 mark.

NEWTON HAS CLASS

So far Newton has been the class of the tourney, walloping Braintree, 14 to 0, and outsmarting Somerville, 4 to 1, both games being won easily with the Newton pitchers allowing only 12 hits for the two contests. Besides showing superb hurling the Jones coached club has been far superior at bat and afield to any other entry, showing lots of class in both departments.

Medford, on the other hand, has had things its own way so far although it took a squeeze play to beat Cambridge Latin, 4 to 3, on Thursday. Against Lawrence, yesterday, Medford showed plenty of power at bat but the Greater Boston champions will have to improve on the field if it plans to annex the Eastern title.

Springfield Grid Pals Italy Heroes

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY, Italy—The Emerald eleven, top football team of West Springfield, Massachusetts, a few years ago, is on the loose again—scoring touchdowns with bullets for the Fifth Army in Italy.

Seven of the ex-grid stars are fighting with a frontline infantry division, while another is in a unit which aided in the push in the lower Carigliano river area. Two more are "playing end" at Anzio and another pair await a crack at the Boche in England.

Pvt. Joe Derby, stocky fullback and end, now an M. P., recently spent a day on pass visiting former teammates.

Two of the soldiers visited by Derby are artillerymen. Staff Sergt. Richard Malone, a supply sergeant in a big gun battalion, came out of Munson Academy to star at end for the Emeralds. Pvt Ffc. Doug Liquri, is a gunner in a canon company. He was the Emerald's rugged center.

ONE SAILOR IN BUNCH

In infantry companies, are four othe rformer grid mates. Pfc. Joe Biepietowski, who played guard recently was honored for heroic action against the enemy. Former tackler, Pvt. Bob Belamey, and Sergt. William Wagger, who filled the other tackle position, are members of the unit. Pvt. George Geffrion, fleet back and a standout in basketball, whose home is in Agawam, joined the division as a replacement in Africa.

In a division fighting with Derby's outfit is Pvt. Sam Symington. Symington, a formidable guard, drives a messenger jeep at the front.

At Anzio taking pot shots at German planes in the same anti-aircraft outfit are Corp. Roger "Doc" Remington, guard, and Corp. R. C. Lague, center.

Iron Mike Ryba Worth Weight in Gold to Sox

By BILL GRIMES

"Iron Mike" Ryba, who came up the hard way, is not expendable, according to Joe Cronin's rating of his value to the Red Sox.

"If we should lose Mike, we'd have to close up shop," declared the Skipper, last Wednesday when Ryba was struck on the temple by a ball thrown by Coach Frank Shellenbach.

Before the gates at Fenway Park were open last Wednesday, Cronin and Joe McCarthy sat in one of the lower boxes fanning. Suddenly a Red Sox player was seen laying on the ground in right center field. It was impossible to identify the stricken player from the stands. After a few minutes Win Green, who had rushed out from the bench, returned leading the victim. It was "Iron Mike" Ryba.

BULLETIN

The Red Sox-Yankees game scheduled at Fenway today finally was postponed after a small crowd vainly waited more than a half-hour for rain to cease.

CRONIN WORRIED

Wearing a worried expression, Skipper Cronin rushed to the dressing room. "How do you feel Mike?" asked the Skipper. "All right, except for this egg size lump on the side of my noggin," replied Mike. "It popped out before I hit the dirt."

Ryba wasn't any too chipper that afternoon and he wasn't himself when he reported at Fenway Park late Thursday afternoon for the twilight game. But Mike is an old trouper who had driven players' buses on night and day jumps, caught the first game and pitched the second of double headers while coming up through the minor leagues.

Iron Mike went down to the bull pen Thursday evening. The late afternoon sun was warm and Mike was relaxed and enjoying himself, after the Red Sox had piled up a six-run lead in two innings. He didn't feel up to pitching that day, for there was still a slight throbbing in his head. Then, out of a clear sky, George Woods lost his control in the third. Before "Iron Mike" could be rushed up from the bull pen, in the fourth, the Yankees had the tieing run on second base.

MIKE CHECKS THE CHAMPS

During the six full innings he was on the mound, Ryba allowed the world's champions four hits and one run. And, that is a feat that only the masters of relief pitching could hope to accomplish, for when the Yanks get rolling they are tough to check.

Due to the excellent pitching of Tex Hughson and Ryba the Red Sox have taken two straight from the Yankees. They have broken even in the 46 games they've played this season and are now only one game behind the faltering Yankees, who must win at least one of the remaining three games to keep from dropping under the .500 mark.

The Red Sox and Yankees wind up the current series with a twin bill tomorrow afternoon, the first game starting at 2 o'clock. It looks like Tex Hughson and Oscar Judd will do the hurling for the Red Sox tomorrow

Babe Doing OK After Operation

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP)—Babe Ruth was reported as doing nicely today following an operation for the removal of cartilage from his right knee. The injury was incurred during his baseball playing days.

"Maybe I can get a few years back and be able to play some golf," said the former home-run king before entering the hospital. He was 50 last February.

Utah School Star Signed by Red Sox

SALT LAKE CITY, June 10 (AP)—Richard (Huck) Dyer, high school star at Provo, Utah, has been signed to a baseball contract by the Boston Red Sox, Holman (Peewee) Bass, Red Sox scout, said today.

He did not disclose terms. Dyer will be sent to Middleton, Ohio, Boston farm team in the Ohio State League.

Bowlers Eye Million

CHICAGO, June 10 (AP)—A million dollars is the goal set by the Bowlers Victory Legion in its campaign during the 1944-'45 season to raise funds from the country's bowlers, the funds to be used to buy recreation equipment for the armed forces overseas.

Spud Chandler's New Son Dies

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., June 10 (AP)—Pvt. Spurgeon (Spud) Chandler, New York Yankee hurler, who was baseball's No. 1 pitcher last season, came here on emergency leave from Camp Shelby, Miss., today because of the death this morning of his newborn son.

The child lived only a few hours after a Caesarean operation. Mrs. Chandler is reported out of danger.

The Yankee star's wife and a 2-year-old son are making their home with Mrs. Chandler's mother, Mrs. T. B. Willard, for the duration.

McKenley in 440 At NCAA Games

MILWAUKEE, June 10 (AP)—Led by versatile Buddy Young and Capt. Bob Kelley, Illinois today ruled favorite to win, for the third time, the National Collegiate Athletic Association's meet.

The Illini, with a 12-man squad, were one of 25 colleges competing in the day-and-night program at Marquette Stadium, with all preliminaries and two finals scheduled for the afternoon and 12 finals on tonight's card.

Boston College was among the eastern schools entered with Herb McKenley in the 440.

N. Y. Drubs Boston In Sears Cup Play

New York's women tennis forces gained the Sears Cup for the third straight year by overwhelming a Boston sextet, seven matches to two, today at Longwood. The trophy-de-Pfenders made a clean sweep of yesterday's opening tilts with Philadelphia.

After watching their No. 1 player, Mrs. Helen Pedersen Rihbany, who ranks ninth nationally, go down to a 6—3, 6—1 defeat under the expert strokings of Katherine Winthrop, the Boston ace, the New Yorkers reeled off four of the other five singles matches and all three of the doubles clashes.

The rival No. 2 players, Mrs. Norma Taubele Barber of New York, and Argyll Rice of Hartford, Ct., a member of the hostess team, staged the only close match, which went to the former, 6—4, 4—6, 6—2.

Grid Yanks' Cafego Passes Up Vol Job

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 10 (AP)—Coach John Barnhill said today that Tennessee's football squad would start a light summer workout Monday, but said that George Cafego, former star university back, had not been hired as an assistant.

Barnhill said that Cafego is planning to play pro ball next fall, and may join the Vols for a little conditioning.

Cafego is expected to play with the Boston Yankees this fall.

Connie Mack Glad To See Wynn Leave

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Early Wynn, Washington right-hander, who is awaiting his call by the Navy, can't enter the United States service too soon to suit the Philadelphia Athletics.

In the four years that he has pitched in the big leagues, Wynn has yet to be beaten by the Mackmen, having defeated them nine times, including last night's game.

Wynn outpitched Lloyd Christopher, limiting the Athletics to seven hits to give the Senators a 2-1 victory. Besides holding the A's in check with his pitching, Wynn batted his way to victory, making two hits and scoring the winning run in the fifth inning on George Myatt's single.

SCHOOLBOY LICKS BRAVES

Mickey Owen's third single of the night with two out in the ninth drove home Dixie Walker, who had doubled, to give Brooklyn a 3-2 victory over Boston. Cal McLish, 18-year-old Oklahoma schoolboy, held the Braves to five hits to notch his second big league win.

The Chicago Cubs and the Pittsburgh Pirates battled 11 innings to a 3-3 tie, called because of rain. Fritz Ostermueller, making his first home appearance for the Pirates and Claude Passeau, veteran hurler, engaged in a pitching duel until the eighth, when each side scored twice. Bill Nicholson homered to account for the Cub runs, and pinch hitter Frank Colman scored two with a triple.

Manager Lou Boudreau's single in the seventh inning scored Oris Hockett and Ken Keltner with the runs that gave the Cleveland Indians a 4-2 victory over the St. Louis Browns. Allie Reynolds walked nine Browns, but was stingy with men on bases.

All other teams were not scheduled.

Cambridge Boy Army Nine's Ace

SALINA, Kan., June 10—A valuable member of the Smoky Hill Army Airfield's baseball team is Corp. Charles D'Alessio of Cambridge, Mass.

Equally at home at third, short or second, Corp. D'Alessio has played both second and short for the airmen this season. He is the leadoff batter.

His baseball career began in Cambridge. He played three years in high school as well as football and basketball. Graduating in 1936, he played several years of semi-pro ball.

He was signed up by the Louisville Colonels of the American Association, playing with them for several seasons. Holding down third base, he averaged well up in the .300s for two seasons and then reported for spring training with the Red Sox in Florida. While in training he injured his arm and retired from baseball until stationed at the Smoky Hill Air Field.

Casey's Tackle Express Team

The league leading Casey Club of Dorchester steps out of the Boston Park circuit again this week for a Sunday afternoon game at the Dorchester Town Field.

This week the competition will be provided by the hard hitting American Express team, a well known amateur club from intown.

Intent on keeping his string unbroken in these non-league contests, Manager Dick Casey will start his Park Loop ace, Cy Epstein but will have his entire staff on hand in case the Expressmen get too tough to handle.

The Dorchester team has eight members who are hitting well over the .600 mark and it will take some great hurling by the opposition to stop them.

Limits Louis to Two

CAMDEN, N. J. (AP)—Comdr. Jack Dempsey says the chances are 100 to 1 against Sergt. Joe Louis retaining the heavyweight boxing title "for more than a couple of bouts" after the war.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME

I REPEAT - THIS IS THE CRUMMIEST POST IN THE ARMY! THE CHOW ISN'T FIT FOR PIGS - THE BARRACKS ARE PNEUMONIA TRAPS - THE OFFICERS ARE SLAVE-DRIVERS AND THERE AIN'T ONE DECENT-LOOKING DAME IN THE TOWN!
SEEMS LIKE THE BOYS WHO GRIPE THE LOUDEST ABOUT EVERY-THING IN THE CAMP.
ALWAYS COME UP WITH THE BIGGEST SQUAWK WHEN TRANSFER ORDERS ARE FORTHCOMING.
TRANSFER? TO FORT FOOTBLISTER? SARGE! THEY CAN'T DO THIS TO ME! WHY-WHY-THIS IS HOME TO ME! I LOVE IT IT'D BREAK MY HEART! SERGEANT, MAY I TALK TO THE CAPTAIN ABOUT THIS?
Thanx To GEORGE L. LASKER, CAPTAIN, A.C., NASHVILLE, TENN.

$17,500 Open Golf On in Heavy Rain

PHILADELPHIA, June 10 (AP)—A heavy downpour slowed play today in the $17,500 Philadelphia open golf tournament as 51 professionals and 10 amateurs went into the third 18-hole round of the 72-hour medal play test.

All the stars, including Sam Byrd of Detroit who holds the lead with a nine-under-par 66-67—133, were among the late starters.

Byron Nelson, Toledo, Ohio, who is tied for fifth at 141, played the first nine in even par 34 through today's rain, while Johnny Bulla of Atlanta, Ga., who had 145 for the first 36, ripped two strokes off par over the same route.

Byrd's putting has been the marvel of the tourney.

Jockey Hurt in Suffolk Spill

By BILL SMITH

SUFFOLK DOWNS, June 10—A bad spill marked the running of the second race here this afternoon before 20,000 fans when Jockey Bob Wholey, aboard Character Man, was thrown from his mount as the field was turning for home. He was reported bady injured on the first examination and was rushed to Massachusetts General Hospital.

Character Man was running well back of the leaders when he appeared to stmuble, throwing Wholey heavily to the ground. He was taken to the track hospital and then to Boston. Wholey is 34 years old and comes from Braddock, Pa. He has been a rider for years and is well known to New England fans.

Dr. Martin Spellman reported that Wholey regained consciousness on the way to the hospital and despite a slight concussion and chest injuries appeared to be in good condition.

Allies Land

Men and assault vehicles storm the Normandy beach of France . . . as Allied landing craft arrive in waves at their destination on D-Day. Note men coming ashore through surf as vehicles are starting inland. Losses were reported surprisingly low.

Over the Top

Sons of Yank Doughboys, who 26 years ago went "over the top" in France during battles of the first World War, repeat with a charge over the top in new battles against the Germans in the second World War in northern France. Others troops wait for orders beside a wall.
